

From the Watchman of the South. RELIGIOUS EXPERIENCE.

The opinion commonly entertained, that the most enormous sinners are the subjects of the most pungent convictions of sin, and the most alarming terrors of hell, is not correct. In regard to such the commencement of a work of grace is sometimes very gradual, and the impressions so apparently slight, that they afford very little ground of sanguine expectations of the result. While on the other hand, some persons of an unimpaired moral character, and who from the influence of a religious education have always respected religion and venerated its ordinances when brought under conviction are more terribly alarmed, and more overwhelmed with distress than others whose lives have been stained by gross crimes. The Rev. John Newton, when awakened to some sense of his sinful and dangerous condition, which occurred during a violent and long continued storm at sea, though his judgment was convinced that he was the greatest of sinners, and he doubted whether it was possible for him to be saved; yet seems to have had no very deep feelings or agonizing fears. He says, "It was not till after, perhaps, several years, that I had gained some clear views of the infinite righteousness and grace of Christ Jesus my Lord, that I had a deep and strong apprehension of my state by nature and practice; and perhaps till then I could not have borne the sight; so wonderfully does the Lord proportion the discoveries of sin and grace. For he knows our frame, and that if he were to put forth the greatness of his power, a poor sinner would be instantly overwhelmed, and crushed as a moth." And though from this time there was a sensible change, and his mind was turned towards religion, yet it is evident from the history of his life, as well as his experiences afterwards, that grace existed during several years, in the feeblest state which we can conceive. It appeared so much so to himself, that he warned all persons from considering his experience a model for them. "As to myself," says he, "every part of my case has been extraordinary—I have hardly met a single instance resembling it. Few, very few, have been rescued from such a dreadful state, and those few that have been favored, have generally passed through the most severe convictions; and after the Lord has given them peace, their future lives have been usually more zealous, bright and exemplary than common." Now this is the opinion which I think is taken up rather from theory than an observation of facts. I think that those persons who have been most conversant with exercised souls will say, that there is no general rule here—that very pungent convictions and deep distress are found as frequently in those who have been preserved from out-breaking transgressions, as in those noted for their immoralities. There seems, indeed, more reason for severe convictions in the latter case; but convictions are not uniformly proportioned to the magnitude of crimes. And in truth, we are incapable of comparing together the heinousness of the sins of different persons. The moral man, as we call him, may be the greatest sinner of the two, when weighed in the balances of the sanctuary. I heard a popular preacher once undertake to prove, that moral men and formal professors, must in all cases be far more wicked than the blaspheming infidel and gross debauchee. The argument was plausible, but labored under one essential defect; and I was of opinion and still am, that such a doctrine is highly dangerous, and calculated to encourage men to go to all lengths in wickedness. When I was a very young preacher, I expressed the opinion in a sermon preached in North Carolina, that the mere moralist and formalist were more out of the way of conviction than the openly profane. When the sermon was ended a fierce looking man came up to me and said that I had delivered precisely his opinion on one point, and mentioned the above sentiment. Inquired, when he was gone, who he was, and found that he was the most notorious profligate in all the country; and not long afterwards he was apprehended, and imprisoned, as the head of a company engaged in felonious acts. This taught me a lesson which I never forgot. Mr. Newton proceeds thus, "Now, on the one hand my convictions were very moderate, and far below what might have been expected from the dreadful review I had to make; so, on the other my first beginnings in a religious course were as faint as can be well imagined. I never knew that season alluded to Rev. ii. 4, 'and he called the time of first love.' And then he relates facts which give evidence of a very low state of grace; and if it had never risen higher we should certainly have been inclined to believe that he was not a subject of saving grace. But this leads me to remark a fact analogous to what is common in the natural world; that the infant when born, barely gives evidence of life, may not only grow to maturity, but in size and strength may far exceed those who commenced life with more activity and vigor; and so in the spiritual life, when the incipient motions and affections are very feeble, the person may eventually become a mature and eminent Christian, as we have no doubt Mr. Newton did. Another instance of a similar kind, if my memory serves me, was the Rev. R. Cozi, who had also been for many years a profane infidel; but who in process of time became one of the most eminent christians, as well as spiritual preachers of his day.—Dr. Thomas Scott also, was a Socinian, and yet a preacher of the established church; but the progress of illumination and conviction in his mind was very gradual. His "Force of Truth" is an admirable little work, and furnishes a full illustration of the sentiment which I wish to inculcate: "That grace in the commencement, is often exceedingly faint and feeble; and yet may grow into a state of maturity and comparative perfection."

In the experience of President Edwards, as recorded by himself, we find no account of any deep and distressing convictions of sin at the commencement of his religious course; though afterwards, perhaps few men ever attained to such deep, humbling views of the depth and turpitude of the depravity of his heart. But his experience differs from that of those mentioned above in that his first views of divine things were clear and attended with unspeakable delight. "The first instance, that I remember of that sort of inward, secret delight in God and divine things, that I have lived much in since, was, on reading those words, 1 Tim. ii. 17, 'Now unto the king eternal immortal and invisible, the only wise God, be honor and glory forever and ever, Amen.' As I read the words, there came into my soul, and was as it were diffused through it, a sense of the glory of the divine Being; a new sense quite different from any thing I ever experienced before. Never any words of Scripture seemed to me as those words did. I thought with myself how excellent a being that was, and how happy I should be, if I might enjoy that God and be rapt up to him in heaven, and be as it were swallowed up in him forever." "From about that time I began to have a new kind of apprehensions and ideas of Christ, and the work of redemption, and the glorious way of salvation by him. An inward, sweet sense of these things, at times, came into my heart; and my soul was led away in pleasant views and contemplations of them." "After this my sense of divine things gradually increased, and became more and more lively, and had more of that inward sweetness. The appearance of every thing was altered.—There seemed to be as it were, a calm, sweet, east or appearance of divine glory, in almost every thing. God's excellency, his wisdom, his purity, and his love seemed to appear in every thing." The difference between this and many other cases of incipient piety is very striking. And yet these views and exercises do not come up to the standard which some set up in regard to christian experience, because they are so abstract, and have such casual reference to Christ, through whom alone God is revealed to man as an object of saving faith.—And if there be a fault in the writings of this great and good man on the subject of experimental religion, it is, that they seem to represent renewed persons as at the first attributes of God with delight, without ever thinking of a Media or. But men never attain, as we think, higher degrees of holiness, or had made more accurate observations on the exercises of others. His work on the Affections is too abstract and tedious for common readers; but is an excellent work, although I think his twelve marks might with great advantage be reduced to half the number, on his own plan.—conclude by remarking, that experimental exercises of religion are sure to take their complexion from the theory of doctrine entertained, or which is inculcated at the time. This subject deserves further consideration.

THE RUSSIAN EMMIGRANTS AT BUFFALO.

These emigrants continue to excite attention; and their prolonged stay in our city has led some to think that they would remain during the winter, and become a tax upon us. No fears of that kind need be entertained. The party are from Prussia and Silesia, and number about 700 in a few days they expect to be joined by 390 more, next spring by 1200, and during the next summer by perhaps 1000 or 2000 of their countrymen, making in all not less than 3000. They are Protestants of the Lutheran Church. A new organization of the religious establishment in Prussia having been effected the King ordered all his subjects to join it, threatening certain penalties for non-conformity. Imprisonment, confiscation of property and persecuting in various forms, were the consequences to the recusants.—Finding they could no longer remain their homes in comfort, numbers of the old school, among whom are those now here, petitioned his Majesty, for permission to quit the country. After more than a year of fruitless exertion, they were at last allowed to depart; and with lighter hearts than they had experienced for many years before, they left their land forever, knowing that after all, there was another land in which they could worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences.

We learn that Mr. W. A. Thomson, hardware merchant of this city, who acts as their agent, has been put in possession of a sum of money sufficient to place them on their lands in Wisconsin, and feed them for eight months, if necessary, independent of the original purchase of the soil.

The greater part of them will leave this week for Milwaukee. We congratulate Wisconsin on the prospect of this valuable addition to its population, and to our city it is a matter of no small moment to have the West filled up with such hardy, industrious settlers.—Buffalo Com. Ad.

On a recent visit to the Maryland Hospital, we learned that some particulars of a melancholy case of the loss of reason from sudden fright. The subject is a male child, about eight years of age, named John H. Frisbie; the son of a respectable widow lady residing at Fell's Point, whose pathological developments seem intended for the elaboration of elevated intellectual conceptions, and whose physiognomy is eminently qualified to give that expression which the tongue cannot give. And yet the intellect of that noble looking child has been irretrievably destroyed by some silly trifler with a false face by whom he was frightened some time last summer. The child, at the time, fell suddenly down, and for two weeks exhibited little or none of his former liveliness, and finally his mind gave way entirely, and though he was kept some time in the hospital, no cure could be effected, and he is now in the care of his mother, in a state compounded of idiocy and madness. Baltimore Sun.

Morus Multicaulis.
THE subscriber has for sale a large number of Morus Multicaulis cuttings. In the qualities which give value for planting, viz: size and MATURITY of wood, they are believed not to be surpassed, perhaps not equalled by any others for sale in the United States. This is owing to the great distance allowed in planting, as well as to suitable soil and good cultivation. Owing to the present scarcity of money, and the consequent depression in the price of every thing else, they are offered at a very reduced price. Persons wishing to purchase should apply early; because all not engaged are now offered in a distant market. Besides, if not sold before Spring the price may then be higher. Printed directions for planting and cultivating will be furnished without charge to those who purchase.

PROSPECTUS OF THE FARMER'S GAZETTE.
THE Editor of the Cheraw Gazette has determined, at the suggestion of the Pee Dee Agricultural Society, to devote more space than formerly to Agriculture, and matters pertaining especially to its interests. About nine columns, or a page and a half weekly, will be occupied with this subject, except when it shall be necessary to make room for Executive Messages, and a few other political papers such as every intelligent citizen ought to read. A large proportion of what shall appear under the Agricultural head must, of course, be selected. But the numerous Agricultural periodicals now published in this country afford abundant and excellent materials for selection; and, after a short time, the reports, and other papers of the Pee Dee Agricultural Society will themselves, form no inconsiderable body of original matter, all of it adapted particularly to this part of the country. And it is hoped, also, that among the numerous intelligent and enterprising planters of the surrounding districts and counties some may be found who will, occasionally, take the trouble of contributing to the columns of the paper the result of their experience.
Among the subjects which will engage the Editor's attention the culture of silk shall not be overlooked. Ample instructions will be given, in their proper season, for cultivating the Morus multicaulis and making silk.
The paper will expose the cause of no party in politics, but shall contain an impartial summary of political intelligence, and, occasionally, able speeches and well written essays (when met with) fairly discussing the principles and measures of all parties. It is believed that a comparatively small space devoted to political subjects in this way may be made more profitable to the Farmer of domestic habits, who wishes to be acquainted with the true state of the country and qualified for a proper and intelligent discharge of the duties of citizenship, than a whole sheet filled, from week to week, and year to year, with one-sided discussions, and mere quarrels of editors and politicians;— whilst, at the same time, it will not be calculated to estrange neighbor from neighbor, or to mislead into a belief that one half of the country are less patriotic than the other, or less ardently attached to our republican institutions.
So much of the fourth page as shall not be occupied with standing advertisements will generally be filled up with matter of moral and religious cast, and articles conducive, in other respects, to proper family instruction and family discipline.
If the increase to the subscription list upon seeing this Prospectus shall be sufficient to warrant the expense, new type will be procured, forthwith, for the body of the paper; that for the part now printed in large letter; and at the commencement of the next volume the title of the paper will be changed to Farmers' Gazette and Cheraw Advertiser.
For Terms see first page.
